About the Book

Harry the clever spider is a story book, which was written by Julia Jarman and illustrated by Charlie Fowkes. This book talks an interesting story between a girl Clare and a spider whose name was Harry. One Saturday, Clare wanted to take this spider to her school. But her brother, mom, and dad were afraid of this spider because it was hairy and didn't want her to do that. At this time, Mom had a toothache, she wanted to go to see the dentist. But she couldn't find the car keys. Harry found the car keys, but mom and dad didn't know Harry find the car keys and told Clare to take Harry out again. Clare told mom and dad Harry found the car keys, so mom and dad yelled "Yes, you can!"

Interesting part

She saw her brother.

"Charlie, come and look at my spider."

Then the spider did bungee jumps.

Down ... and UP.

Down ... and UP.

"Wow," said Clare. "I'll take you to school on Monday. We're doing minibeasts."

Then, Clare took Harry to her school. When she came to school, her classmates were very scared. They cried, "take this big, hairy, and scary monster away!" Clare was very sad and sit on her chair. When class began at 8:30 a.m., the teacher asked her a question. Clare stood up, then her teacher found her spider. Her teacher was very angry, she asked her to take this spider away. Clare had no choice but put Harry into her bag. When the class finished at 4:00p.m., she couldn't find Harry, so she cried. One minate later, her teacher came to tell her don't cry, because she found Harry! But the teacher said, "Don't bring the spider to school next day, or I will tell your mom and dad." At that time, Clare was ready to go home, but her teacher couldn't find her book. Clare said, "Harry can find your book, teacher." Harry found her book in office, her teacher was very happy, and said, "You can bring it every day!"

Goodbye!
See you next time!
